

flow

My SEL & Positive Psychology Implementation Plan Worksheet.

Your personal roadmap to building an emotionally intelligent and thriving classroom.

Instruction

Now that you've reflected on your own well-being and support systems, it's time to create your own SEL and Positive Psychology Implementation Plan.

This plan will help you bring SEL to life in your classroom consistently and sustainably. It's not about perfection, it's about purpose!

Section 1

My Why:

Reflect on your personal motivation for incorporating SEL and positive psychology into your teaching.

Why does Social and Emotional Learning (SEL) matter to me as a teacher?

Answer:

Section 2

My Focus Areas:

(e.g. empathy, emotional regulation, gratitude, growth mindset, responsible decision-making)

What are the top 3 SEL or Positive Psychology skills I want to focus on with my students this term?

Answer:

Section 3

Integration Into My Teaching:

Tick the methods you plan to use and describe briefly how you'll do it.

How will I integrate SEL and positive psychology into my subject or classroom routines?

Others:

Answer:

My integration plan (brief description):

Answer:

Section 4

Modeling SEL and Positivity:

(e.g., practicing self-regulation, showing optimism, expressing appreciation)

How will I model these values and skills in my own behavior?

Answer:

Section 5

My Support System:

(Who or what can help you keep going—colleagues, resources, routines?)

What support will I need to stay consistent and motivated?

Answer:

Section 6

My First Steps:

(Start simple. Focus on building momentum.)

What are 2 small actions I will take in the next 2 weeks?

Answer:

- 1.
- 2.

Collaboration:

(This can be done through a discussion forum, breakout group, or collaborative session.)

Would you like to share your plan with a peer or small group for feedback and encouragement?

Answer:

Section 7

Final Note to Myself:

(Something simple)

What encouragement or reminder do I want to leave for myself today?

Answer: